Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

One pleasant night, with duties and humdrum cares forgot, the writer retired to his rest in a mountain inn. Though he wooed the sleep that knits up the ragged sleeve of care, various matters interevened and for a time vanished sweet Nepenthe. The partitions in the inn were thin boards Other travelers and other guests had laid them down to rest and throughout the building there rose a slumber symphony, muted but little by the partitions. It was music without ordered rhythm, but with a rhythm of its own, with crescendos and diminuendos, allegros and occasional fortissimos.

Musing over this peculiarity of human kind, and wondering whether the dreams of all those unconscious recumbent ones marched to this music, first was considered the varonious explanations. Snoring, 'tis said, is caused by the palate relaxing and dropping into the throat, obstructions in the nostrils, or some perverse twist in the laryngeal tubes. People as like as peas in a pod will never snore in unison, much less in harmony, and yet given an inn full of snorers they do produce a certain music.

It is never safe of course to venture a guess on the sex of one of these unconscious musicians, merely by listening to the various snore songs. Yet from somewhere on the first floor, we judge the good cook sleeps. There is gurgling sound, a frying sound and a sibulant hiss as of the tea kettle, distinctly suggesting the busy chef. That distant, reedy squeal similar to the oboe, is no doubt the young lady of broad figure who affects roomy pantaloons and a love of climbing the rugged peaks.

From nearer at hand, possibly in the adjourning chamber there is a steady rumbling, smothered somewhat, it would seem by an enveloping adipose tissue. Lending a critical ear to this unconscious artist, one is reminded distinctly of those sounds emitted from an elephant's digestive tract busy with its fodder. Occasionally the montony of this basso profunda is varied with a rise to higher registers. Now and again he runs a tremulo on his nasal piccolo, a bit fantastic to be sure, but fused with the rest of the heterodox rhapsody, it supplies a piquant note. This chap, in his waking hours, must be the corpulent fisherman repairing the day's rough usage.

Ceasing to listen critically to this orchestration of an unwritten, indeed, uncomposed symphony, drowsily memory wanders afield to the story of a young tallyman, volunteering for a summer in a redwood sawmill. Arrived on the scene our hero is told to build himself a bunk in the ox shed, that part of it stored with hay. With borrowed tools the bunk is hammered together and gunny sacks stuffed with straw are made into a mattress. On this he spreads his blankets and climbs in, presumably, to sleep.

But a moan from a distant corner of the loft banishes sleep. The moan is followed by the sound of two lumbermen furiously contesting for a prize in sawing a log. Comes then a deep rumbling diapason, followed by the shrill piping of a willow whistle. Without order, one sound merging and colliding with another, an angry bull gives a distant bellow, occasionally a turtle dove, in a brief lull, sounds a plaintiff note. A new sound, deep and reverberating, increases in volume to the thudding roar of a freight train climbing a Sierra grade. And again the willow whistle, and now steam escaping from a locomotive. Not a wink of sleep did the tallyman get that night, or for that matter a dozen other sawmill hands that slept in the loft. The next morning, by virtue of his small authority, the tallyman was chosen chairman of a grievance committee to interview this disturber of slumber.

One glance at this man, broad of beam and shoulder, huge of girth and tremendously tall, gave the tallyman pause. Then remembering that the taller they were, the harder they fell, he approached this Goliath of cacophony. The tallyman was small of stature but he assumed a stern mein. "Sir," he said without preamble, "last night the only man who slept in our hay loft, was deaf. Will you move your bed, or must we move you?" The giant looked downcast. Grief flooded his face and tears presently flowed down his cheeks. "My boy," he said, "I am accursed. I have been hounded from railroad camp to bridge gangs, from fruit picking to sawmills. Wherever I go, I do two men's work, but at night I must sleep. My fellow men turn against me everywhere. What shall I do? I must work to eat and ,I must sleep to work?" The tallyman was touched. He thought of a plan. "Go down the road." he said. "As you go stop every hundred feet and yell as loud as you can. When we can no longer hear you there make your bed." Accordingly it was done. He walked with his blankets for nearly half a mile, and there made his bed under a bush. Of course, all this was in the days of rugged individualism.

Thus musing and ruminating the writer of this column fell asleep and added his own mellifluous notes to the strange, pulsing overture rising from the inn's sleeping guests.

One Killed, Nine Hurt In Circus Car Crash

At about two o'clock this afternoon Deputy Sheriff Carl Larsen heard a call come over his office broadcast calling traffic officers on highway 40 to go to the foot of Bear Valley grade leading to Emigrant Gap as there had been a bad car wreck and a possible death Mr. V. J. Wilson came to the Tahoe National headquarters at about 3 and stated that it was a circus outfit coming to Nevada City from Nevada state. As they descended the grade coming into Bear Valley one truck got out of control. Nine were injured and one man killed in the resulting crash. The injured were taken to Big Bend ranger station and given first aid.

TAX DIGEST SAYS VOTE "NO" ON 30 THURS. WARRANT

The California Tax Digest, among other initiative measures which will appear on the ballot, strongly condemns the "thirty warrants every Thursday" scheme. The number of this measure on the ballot is 25. The Digest gives the following as a reason for voting "No."

This $1,600,000,000 "hot money," "Life Begins at Fifty," "Ham and Eggs," pension, to be financed by retirement compensation warrants and redemption stamps, would cost a third of the net income and earnings of all the people in California; it would cost over thirty times the cost of California's present old age pension system(already the most liberal in the Union); it would completely disrupt public credit by glutting government treasuries with stamp scrip; it would drive good money out of the state; it would cost, on the basis of the current volume of business in California, the equivalent of a 10 per cent tax on every business transaction, which would be in addition to existing taxes. In addition, if the stamp scrip phase of the plan proved workable, a confiscatory burden could be placed directly on the tax payers, because of the provision in the proposal for payment of the $30 every Thursday in warrants "or their face value equivalent in lawful money of the United States." Defeat of this proposal, which would take unprecedented sums from the working people of California to provide $30 every Thursday for retired people over fifty, regardless of their need for public assistance, is urged by the association.

PHIL BANCROFT, REPUBLICAN, IN SENATE DRIVE

Thirty two years of advocating progressive legislation in California today was cited by Philip Bancroft, militant Walnut Creek farmer and nominee for United States Senator, as he swung full stride into his state-wide campaign, the first candidate to open his fight.

Bancroft made it plain he had not deviated from his stand against Communist-controlled labor unions and against certain labor leaders who were bent upon sabotaging American industry.

Forceful expression of many thoughts uppermost in the public mind made during the primary campaign would be repeated, Bancroft said.

"Back in 1908 two men broke the slate of the old Sauthern Pacific machine and were elected delegates to the Republican National Convention —I was one of those two," Bancroft said.

"Two years later, as an active member of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, I did everything in my power to help elect Hiram Johnson governor and I have been a Hiram Johnson Progressive ever since.

"I supported his progressive legislation throughout his six years as governor. When he went to the United States Senate, I heartily concurred in his opposition to our entering the League of Nations, and later, the World Court.

"I believe that his bill known as the Johnson Act which has prevented the floating in America of further loans and securities by countries that are in default to the United States on their debts, has been the only thing that has protected our people from having had foisted upon them by the international bankers hundreds of millions of additional loans which in their turn would surely have been defaulted. I have of course, supported him in his opposition to the packing of the Supreme Court and the surrendering by Congress of the rights and powers expressly given to it by our Constitution.

"I was from the start a strong advocate of the California Workmen's Compensation Act and although in its original form farmers were expressly exempted from its terms, I promptly took the necessary action to assume full responsibility to give every man on our farm full protection under the Act."

Regarding labor, Bancroft said he had always sympathized with the aims and the ideals for which that organization stands.

"Were I working at any trade organized by the American Federation of Labor I would certainly join one of their labor unions and take an active part in their proceedings. I have so advised young men who have come to me for advice. The AF of L officials thoroughly believe in the American theory that, in order for our people to attain the highest possible standard of living, the producer should be encouraged by his employees to make a reasonable profit. This makes for progress and more jobs. T.he union leader than steps in and tries to secure a large share of the profits as is practicable, which is right."

Referring to the CIO Bancroft declared its leadership was dominated by the Marxian theory that there must and always will be a bitter class feud between employer and employee

H. S. STUDENTS STATE WIDE ESSAY CONTEST

Nevada County high school students are invited to participate in a state wide essay writing contest on the general subject of the Pacific Area countries contribution to the resources and cultures of contemporary civilization.

This annonncement was made by the Woman's Board of the Golden Gate International exposition through its Nevada County chairman, Miss Bernice Glasson of Grass Valley. The local high schools have received the rules for the contest and a printed bibliography of magazines, periodicals and book source material.

A series of illustrated mounts, showing examples of arts, peoples, industries and transportation of the various countries will be displayed in the Nevada City and Grass Valley high school as part of the essay project. The mounts have been prepared for the Woman's Board of the Exposition by the San Francisco Museum of Art, of which Dr. Grace McCann Morely is director. These mounts are being circulated throughout the state and will be available for school and club exhibitions after the close of the essay contest.

In Nevada County Sunday to confer with Miss Glasson was Hazel Pedlar Faulkner of San Francisco, director of activities for the woman's board of the exposition. Mrs. Faulkned also visited for a few hours with her sister, Mrs. Raglan Tuttle of Nevade City. She returned to San Francisco last night.

WOMAN SHOOTS SELF IN CAR SATURDAY

Mrs. Agnes Munn, 26, fired a bullet into her heart Saturday and met instant death.

Mrs. Munn was sitting in a car belonging to Llewellen Manamake at the corner of Pine and Spring street when she committed suicide. Wanamake stated that he was trying to persuade her to go to her room in the National Hotel just before she shot herself but she insisted that she wished to go to the home of her aunt. He stated that he stepped away from the car he heard a shot and jumped back to the car as the woman slumped over in the seat.

Mrs. Munn had been living in Nevada City for the past several months. Her mother, a Mrs. Marshall and an eight year old daughter reside at You Bet as does her estranged husband, Walter Munn. Mrs. Munn at one time was employed as a telephone operator in Grass Valley.

PEACH BOWL CHAPTER C.S.E.A. CONVENE IN G. V.

Peach Bowl chapter of C. S. E. A. of state division of highways of this district, will hold its annual meeting in the Veterans Memorial building in Grass Valley Friday evening, October 7. Since Superintendent Fred Garrison has been president of the chapter he has tried to hold one of the annual meetings in each section of his district. This is the first for this area. An average of 500 attend these meetings. Members will come from Auburn, Sacramento, Woodland, Arbuckle, Williams, Chico, and Downieville. There are about 40 families who have employees in the local plant at Nevada City's southern city limits.

Mrs. Fred Garrison is in charge of ceremonies and has been busy arranging an hours entertainment on the program which will be mostly by children of the local employees. Two prominent state employees will also speak during the evening. An excellent orchestra has been engaged and dancing will be enjoyed. Refreshments will be served and the jolly affair is looked forward to with keen pleasure.

Fred Nobs, superintendent of the North Star-Empire group of mines for the Newmont interests, entertained about thirty first aid and safety men at a delicious Italian and fried chicken dinner at the New York hotel Sunday evening. A jolly social time was enjoyed.

Independent Group In Lava Cap Mine Force CIO Show-down

It is rumored that the CIO affiliate, which for a year past has been the bargaining agency at the Lava Cap mine, had threatened to declare Lava Cap concentrates "hot cargo" in event they were shipped to Selby's Smelter Co., near Crockett.

The Nugget is advised that any time this device is tried on Lava Cap, the mine will be closed, throwing practically all of the 270 now employed out of work for about three months, while a cyanide plant for reducing the mine's concentrates will be installed. In this event the Lava Cap would be in a position to ship nothing but bullion, and that to the United States mint in San Francisco. Thus for the Mint has not been troubled with CIO exactions or "hot cargo" stunts.

A short time ago a considerable majority of the Lava Cap employes signed a petiition to the regional director of the Labor Board, Madame Rossiter in San Francisco, asking that a vote be held to determine which group of the miners, the CIO affiliate, whose bargaining agency contract expired August 1, or the Mine Workers Protective League, should be the bargaining agency for the new term. The CIO afiliate has resorted to various devices to prevent a show-down of numerical strength among the mine's employes, first, refusing a vote, then trumping up charges of coercion against the management with frequent threats of a labor board hearing. These various threats and stallings, have at length resulted in the announcement that the Lava Cap, beginning with this month, will hereafter ship its concentrates to Selby's and thereby remove itseelf from the Labor Board's jurisdiction. The mine has shipped its concentrates to Tacoma in the past. According to the ruling of the Appelate Court in the Idaho-Maryland's case briefly stated, the Idaho Maryland, is not in interstate commerce, and therefore not within the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board. This ruling now applies to the Lava Cap.

However, it is understood that Otto Schiffner, manager of the Lava Cap, prefers to deal with a bargaining agency, an agency, fairly chosen by the men themselves, whether or not the mine is within the Labor Board's statutory scope. The majority of the miners having signed a petition to hold an election propose to do so, whether Madame Rossiter approves or not, or whether the minority approve, or not, confident that their group is large enough to poll a majority of all the miners, even if the CIO affiliate refuses to vote. In this extremity the CIO has consented to hold an election under supervision of the Labor Board and as this report goes to press, it looks as if the election would be held next Friday in the firehouse of the city hall. At least this is the report that comes from CIO headquarters today.

The following is the agreement signed last Saturday by O. E. Schiffner for the Lava Cap Mining Corporation, by Ed Jones for the Mine Workers Protective League, and by R. J. Harris for the CIO affiliate:

AGREEMENT

The Lava Cap Gold Mining Corporation, Nevada City, California, The Mine Workers Protective League, and International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, the parties hereto, hereby authorize the National Labor Relations Board, 20th Region, to conduct an election among the production employees (exclusive of shift bosses, foremen, and other supervisory employees) of the Lava Cap Gold Mining Corporation, Nevada City, California, to determine the collective bargaining representative of said employees and said Federal Labor Relations Board, 20th Region, it hereby authorized to post such notices, prepare such ballots, and take such other steps as in its opinion are necessary and proper to the conducting of such election. The parties hereto further agree that the results of the election shall be certified by the Regional Director of the National Labor Relations Board, 20th Region, and that the organization receiving the votes of a majority of the employees participating in such election shall be the sole and exclusive collective bargaining representative of all the production employees of the Lava Cap Gold Mining Corporation. Said corporation hereby agrees to recognize and deal with the organization receiving such majority as the sole and exclusive collective bargaining agent of its production employees, for a period of at least one year. Employees employed on the date of signing of this petition shall be eligible to vote.

Signed at Nevada City, Califonia, this 1st day of October, 1938.

LAVA CAP GOLD MINING CORPORATION.

By OTTO E. SCHIFFNER.

While the agreement sets no date for the election, it is reported that it will be held next Friday. An election called by the group of mine workers who are not members of the CIO affiliate was to have been held last Monday, but with the CIO, at last willing to go to a vote, this election was postponed.

FIRST CONCRETE POURED ON NORTH FORK DAM

The actual work on the North Fork debris control dam began today. According to an ennauncement in Sacramento Saturday the first concrete was to be poured today.

November 10 is tentatively set as the date for opening of bids for the Narrows dam, opposite Mooney Flat.

The War Department, through the California Debris Commission, will establishe a camp near the top of the grade leading down to the dam site for the resident engineer and his aides. Suitable buildings with good accommodations will be installed. It is also expected that the contracting firm will house at least a portion of the crews on the grounds. Two years will be required for completition of the dam. Winter work will probably be devoted to excavations above the water level, described as stripping.

Revised plans, it is understood, are being considered for the Bear River project. It is stated that the Debris Commission, the P. G. & E. and the gravel owners may consider a dam at the Dog Bar site with a system of auxiliary dams and bypassing canals. A system which will separate water intended for power and domestic uses.

Alfred Gerrard of Oregon is visiting Roy Zimmerman.

BENEFIT FLOWER SALE FOR BOYS AND GIRLS

U. S. N. Johnson and Mrs. Johnson today announced that anyone desiring to purchase flowers for the benefit of Camp Fire Girls or Boy Scouts may, while they last, either call at the gardens, corner of Jordan and Gethsemane streets, and receive them there, or telephone orders and they will be delivered. All proceeds from the sale of these flowers will go to the treasuries of Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls.

On Saturday arrangements are being made for a flower sale in Nevada City's business district for the benefit of the two organizations. Sales of flowers ordered from Grass Valley will benefit the Boy Scouts and Camp Fire Girls of that city.

The many friends of County Superintendent of Schools, Ella M. Austin, who has been ill for some days will be pleased to know that she is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weege will go to the bay region the coming week end to visit their son, Carlos Casmore who recently enlisted in the army and is at the Presidio. The young man is making fine progress in his studies and will be transferred to Fort Lewis, Washington in February.

Ham & Eggs Tax Fights Single Tax

By CLEM WHITAKER

No one seems to ohave noted it, but the "Single Tax"-Sales Tax Repeal Act andthe "$30 Every Thursday" pension scheme—the two most controversial issues on California's November ballot—are diametrically opposed to each other!

Taken together, they constitute a curious cemmentary on political perversity, for thousands of initiative petition signers doubtless signed up for both measures.

Yet the so-called "Single Tax" would repeal the State sales tax, while the "$30 Every Thursday" act would levy the highest tax ever applied in any state in the Union.

The 2-cent per week stamp tax onepension warrants, as contemplated in the "ham and egg" proposal, would amount to a transactions tav, or sales tax, of one billion, five hundred and sixty million dollars a year.

The present state sales tax, which proporents of the "single tax" condemn as too high, brings in less than one hundred million a year—the bulk of which goes to support of the public school system.

"Ham and eggs" without a sales tax, in the opinion of the experts, is an economic impossibility—yet that is the order which debonair petition signers have shouted to California voters.

If the "ham and egg" pension proposal and the "Single Tax" should both receive voter-approval, California would find itself in the following position:

It would have repealed the State sales tax (and various other taxes), piling the burden on the common property taxpayer.

And, at the same time, it would have enacted a new sales tax fifteen times greater than the one repealed—to pay pensions to its retired citizens greater than the average yearly income of its working citizens.

But there are increasing indications that the "Single Taxers" and the pensioners, if left to their own devices, will be at each other's throats long before election day. They're incompatible.

In 1936, California voters defeated all but four of the 23 ballot proposals submitted to them. They are quite likely to better that record in 1938.

BLOODY NOSES, BLACK EYES

Sheriff Carl J. Tobiassen and Deputy Sheriff Carl Larsen were summoned to North San Juan Saturday evening to quell a disturbance. Upon arrival Larsen stated they found several with boody noses, black eyes and shirts torn off. No warrants of arrest were made and no one seemed to know the cause of the trouble.

J. A. McIntosh, retired from the Tahoe National Forest service, is spending a few days in Nevada City. He spent the summer at Echo Summit where he was in charge of fire control for a contractor who has built three miles of new grade. The road eliminates many turns and curves and was heavy grading. It is between Tahoe and Placerville. Mr. McIntosh makes his home at Challenge and spends some time in Marysville with relatives.

AT THE CAMPORAL

Supervisor DeWitt Nelson of the Tahoe National Forest was ranking officer at the big Boy Scout Camporal at Camp Pahatsi during the past week end. J. D. Rafferty, law enforcement officer of the national forest was also in the group at the camp. He stated the storm "rained out" some of the planned outing.

Dick Parsons, who is stationed at the state inspection station at Peavine, Nevada, is home with his parents for a twelve day period.

SHAKING CHIPS OUT OF OUR HAIR, removing eight penny nails from our pockets, and slivers from various parts of our anatomy, we return to our typewriter, with the comment that we still think peace-at-any-price is better than having most of the world turn into nations of miles, living underground might be O. We done went and got ourselves one too, and we find our eye gleaming with the devotion of an entire family, including grandparents! Terrible how pups get you! JOLLY COMEDY OPENS ON STAGE OF ALCAZAR, S. F.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—A comedy within a comedy, a rollicking farce as done by a barnstorming troupe of actors in the seventeenth century, is contained in the Federal Theatre's newest play, "A Moral Entertainment," which opened at the Alcazar for a two weeks run tonight.

The play's locale is a village in Massachusetts in 1690. Unaware of the town's Puritanical regulations a traveling company of players announce a few performances of Shakespeare's dramas. The town's brass hat, a Puritan minister, mayor, prosecutor, public defender and dictator in general arrests the entire company and sentences them to various and sundry bodily butcheries after which they must serve a term in prison, unless they accept the Puritan faith, become residents and settle down on an acre with a cow, horse, pigs, goat and wife, all of which the community furnishes.

FERRY CAPTAIN WILL LIVE IN NEVADA CITY

Mr. and Mrs. John Stritzsky, Sr., who reside in Alameda visited their son and family recently and were so delighted with this district they purchased an acre and a half from W. H. Daniels. It is near the home of their son and is heavily wooded. They have started a five room house on the property. Captain Stritzsky is a ferry boat captain and has operated ferries across the San Francisco bay the last 40 years until he was retired recently. After traveling extensively they found this part of California was just the right place for them to commute back and forth to the bay.

Bobbie Hudnell, graduate with the class of 1938 from the Nevada City high school who enlisted in the army and is stationed at Fort McDowell, San Francisco, is to be transferred to military headquarters near Spokane, Washington in a short time. He is the son of Mrs. P. Flatley of Nevada City.

PHIL BANCROFT

and that the employer is always the exploiter.

"Communists have long employed this alien theory in their efforts to overthrow our government," he went on. "They tried to disrupt the AF of L by boring from within and many of that organization's troubles have been caused by their tactics.

"The CIO high command has welcomed these agitators with open arms and has gladly appointed them to positions in their most imporant unions, where, aided and abetted by a sympathetic Secretary of Labor, they have proceeded to work, not for the advancement of labor, but, by means of insistence on unreasonable demands, for the creation of discord and ultimate destruction of prosperous industries, with resulting loss of countless jobs.

"I need only to mention the complete demoralization of our Pacific Coast shipping by the alien Communist Harry Bridges and his CIO beef squads."

His own dealings with labor, Bancroft stated, had been most satisfactory. As a resident of San Francisco for twelve years, he said, he had employed many union men. During his nineteen years as a farmer he has employed over 2,000 men.

"I have never asked a man whether or not he was a member of a union," Bancroft said. "I considered this his own affair. I have always paid the standard wage in our community, except when I have paid higher than the standard, and I have consistently urged our various farm organizations to encourage their members to pay the highest wages they could afford."

Bancroft is tackling an itinerary through southern California that would frighten even the most seasoned campaigner. In his tours he has proven himself an iron man and during his southern California sojourn plans to meet individually and speak before more of his fellow citizens than were ever addressed by any candidate.

TREE PLANTING ADDS TO STATE FOREST ASSETS

Reforestation programs in California's national forest lands added 2200 acres of reclaimed wealth to the state's resources during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1938, the United States Forest Service reported today. Regional Forester S. B. Show indicated that reforestation schedules are being fully maintained with fall planting soon to be undertaken in several national forests.

Civilian Conservation Corps enrollees attached to Forest Service projects were credited with the work of sowing tree seeds and planting young trees in the seven national forests where operations were conducted under the supervision of experienced foresters.

Activities of forest rangers and the enrollees showed a total of 750,000 pine trees planted on 1890 acres of pine trees planted on 1890 acres of unproductive public forest lands. More than 450 pounds of pine seed was sown over 310 fire-scarred acres of the Tahoe National Forest. Reforestation activities in the California region are conducted on severaly burned areas in the commercial timber belt and in brush fields where chaparral has replaced the natural forest cover on lands burned over years ago.

It was learned from Regional Forester Show that forest service objectives in reclaiming formerly timbered areas are to bring the land back to a productive and scenic state suitable for recreation grounds, wild life refuges and fool control watersheds from which eventually mature trees may be properly harvested on a sustained yield basis. Jeffrey and ponderosa pines species are preferred for reforestation in Califoornia because of their hardy nature and accepted aesthetic and economic values.

SNOW FALLS

A storm over the past week end, that brought thunder and lightening, left about a half inch of rain in the local area. Snow fell on the Donner Summit and about three inches lay on the ground for a time. Supervisor Alex Robertson who came over the summit this morning stated there was no snow on the roads. Hunters in the Heness Pass area were considerably hampered by a sudden fall of huge flakes that blinded drivers and gave them considerable trouble. Predictions are for frost tomorrow morning. So far Nevada City has had only touches of frost that did not kill the gorgeous autumn flowers in many yards over the city.

LOOKOUTS STILL AT POSTS

E. M. Stone, fire dispatcher for the Tahoe National park, stated today all lookouts are remaining at their posts. The present storm wetted the leaves and grass down to some extent, but fire hazards still exist. The boys usually on fires are busy with nearby work the storm giving them a chance to catch up on odd jobs.
